Monseigneur

J'ai l'honneur de vous présenter ce pour vous exprimer l'admiration que vous avez inspirée le jour de ma visite à Versailles. La joie que vous avez signalé de mes progrès, et à votre exemple infatigables, il me fait espérer le tout mon succès.
Monseur,

I have experienced so long your good will as my professor that I beg you to accept this little volume as a feeble proof of my gratitude, for to the interest you have taken in my progress and to your untiring efforts I must attribute all my advancement. It gives me pleasure to accept the "Tragedies of Corneille" which you have sent me. I shall be charmed to read them again. I shall endeavor, Monsieur, not to forget your instructions in the French language, but to profit by them as much as possible and also to prove to you that I am your very respectful and very grateful pupil.

Marie A. R. Curtis

Arlington, 1825.